Business Report

(From April 1, 2013, to March 31, 2014)

1. Current State of Group Operations

(1) Operating Environment

1. Business Operations and Results (consolidated)

The world economy continued its recovery trend during fiscal 2013, primarily in developed countries as the U.S. economy, mainly private consumption, was solid and European economies were on a moderate recovery path although economic growth in China and other emerging markets slowed. Meanwhile, despite intensifying upward pressure on costs, including the price of imports due to the depreciation in the value of the yen and energy prices, the Japanese economy experienced a correction in the appreciation in the value of the yen and accelerated emergency economic measures, among others, as part of so-called "Abenomics" with a trend of rising private consumption through to the end of fiscal 2013 resulting from last-minute demand ahead of the increase in the consumption tax rate.

Against this economic background, Mitsui Mining & Smelting Co., Ltd. and its consolidated subsidiaries (the Mitsui Kinzoku Group) enjoyed strong demand in its high-end copper foil products for smartphones and thin-film materials during the fiscal 2013 first-half period although metals prices softened. In the fiscal 2013 second-half period, the Group continued to enjoy strong demand for its high-end copper foil products and thin-film materials, on top of seeing a recovery in metal prices and the continuing effect of the depreciation of yen.

Under these circumstances, the Group formulated and launched its "2013 Medium-Term Plan," a 3-year medium term plan starting in fiscal 2013. The Group continued to pursue business fields where it can demonstrate its strengths and which will lead to growth and made efforts to further strengthen its management foundation. Steps were taken, specifically, to reinforce the production facilities in the battery materials business, to push expansion of the catalysts business to emerging countries, to strengthen the recycling business, to promote mine investment and to expand the global production structure in the automotive parts and components operations.

As a result of the above, net sales in fiscal 2013 registered an increase of \(\frac{\pmath{\text{\text{23}}}}{23,827}\) million compared with the previous fiscal year, to \(\frac{\pmath{\text{\tex{

2. Operating Environment and Results by Each Group

Engineered Materials Group

Although sales of lithium manganese oxide and hydrogen storage alloy for eco-friendly automobiles were strong, the resources market had a hindering effect on the Engineered Material Group. Meanwhile, demand for motorcycle catalysts expanded and sales volume rose, backed by strengthening exhaust regulations in emerging countries. However, for assuring competitiveness, the Group pressed ahead with price reductions by decreasing the precious metals in catalysts. As a result, sales decreased \mathbb{\feft}8,613 million year on year to \mathbb{\feft}48,017 million, and ordinary income declined \mathbb{\feft}2,610 million year on year to \mathbb{\feft}5,691 million.

Metals, Minerals & Environmental Engineering Group

Demand for zinc remained strong due to the expansion in public works investment and other factors. Prices on the London Metal Exchange fell slightly from the previous fiscal year, while the yen remained weak. As a result, sales in the Metals, Minerals & Environmental Engineering Group posted a year-on-year increase of ¥12,498 million to ¥155,484 million. Ordinary income increased ¥3,489 million year on year to ¥4,705 million, due to factors such as the depreciation of yen and the effect of cost reductions.

Electronic Materials Group

Demand for high-end ultra-thin copper foil remained strong, due to growth in the market for mobile devices such as smartphones, while demand for electrodeposited copper foil and resin-coated copper foil remained weak. Meanwhile, metal powders saw sluggish sales for silver powder. As a result, sales in the Electronic Materials Group declined ¥5,595 million year on year to ¥65,586 million. However, ordinary income increased ¥844 million to ¥3,492 million year on year, due to the increase in the sales volume for ultra-thin copper foil, improvements made to the product mix, and other factors.

Materials & Applications Group

Sales volume for thin-film materials (ITO) increased, due mainly to the upswing in indium prices, the strong market for use in liquid crystal TVs, and the sustained strong demand for use in mobile devices. Sales volume for other products also remained generally strong. As a result, sales in the Materials & Applications Group increased \(\frac{1}{2}\)7,247 million year on year to \(\frac{1}{2}\)13,413 million. Ordinary income increased \(\frac{1}{2}\)7,865 million year on year to \(\frac{1}{2}\)1,043 million, due to factors such as the increased sales volume for thin-film materials and inventories.

Automotive Parts & Components Group

A number of factors had an effect on the Automotive Parts & Components Group, including last-minute demand ahead of the increase in the consumption tax rate in Japan, the recovery in sales of Japanese automobiles in the Chinese market, and the strong market in North America. As a result, sales increased \(\frac{\frac{1}}{1,163}\) million year on year to \(\frac{\frac{\frac{2}}{90,059}}{1,059}\) million. However, ordinary income declined \(\frac{\frac{2}}{2,237}\) million year on year to \(\frac{\frac{2}}{3,975}\) million, due to the temporary cost increases accompanying the shift to Asia, and other factors.

Net sales and ordinary income by each group are the following:

5. Research & Development and Resource Development

Research and Development

In connection with the engineered materials area, the Company carried out development on cathode and anode materials for next-generation rechargeable lithium ion batteries, new catalyst materials and catalysts for fuel cell vehicles, and phosphors for white LEDs. In the electronic materials area, the Company pursued technological improvements for electro-deposited copper foil, and development of products such as advanced fine pattering materials for hi-end logic IC package applications and fine metal powders.

Resource Development

In the Republic of Peru, the Group continued to explore mining possibilities in the Huanzala and Pallca mines in addition to the Atalaya region, which is located between the two mines. (3) Important Challenges Ahead

In fiscal 2014, the global economy will likely remain stable overall, including the economies of China and other emerging countries, as developed nations, primarily the United States, take a driving role. However, such uncertainties as the political problems in the Middle East, Crimea, Russia and other regions, as well as the shadow banking issue in China, will continue to impact global markets. Moreover, as is the case for the global economy, the Japanese economy is forecast to remain steady overall, underpinned by factors such as public investment based on the supplementary budget, although a negative impact from the increase in the consumption tax rate is expected.

Taking into consideration these factors, the Group intends to further strengthen its management foundation by steadily carrying out the "2013 Medium-Term Plan," the 3-year business plan it formulated last year, during fiscal 2014, the second year of the plan. In particular, in order to further accelerate and evolve its existing initiatives, the Group aims to speed up efforts directed at developing and launching new products, and maintain and enhance the earnings of existing operations by implementing company-wide, organizational structural changes, that will allow a full review and concentration of management resources.

Specific measures are as follows:

The Engineered Materials Sector will expand from three to six divisions, adding divisions that include copper foil, metal powders, PVD materials and ceramics, and at the same time, reorganize into a structure that can produce technological synergies in the Group's strength fields of "powders," "circuit materials" and "material forming technologies." In conjunction with this, the research and development functions of the Corporate R&D Center will be integrated into the Engineered Materials Sector.

The Metals Sector will be comprised of three divisions, which are the Metals & Recycling Division, the Mineral Resources Division and the Copper Business Strategic Division. The Metals & Recycling Division will aim to implement a structural change, primarily focused on recycling, by integrating smelting operations leading to the reorganization of facilities and technologies owned by each smelting plant, while the Mineral Resources Division will seek to enhance profitability and investment returns. Moreover, the Copper Business Strategic Division will be firmly involved in running Pan Pacific Copper Co., Ltd., a joint venture with JX Nippon Mining & Metals Corporation.

Mitsui Kinzoku ACT Corporation will operate enterprises aligned with its business culture and will commit to even greater specialization in automobile parts and components than in the past.

At the same time as performing the roles that only the Corporate division can play, the departments will develop strategies in response to greater globalization.

On top of carrying out the above growth strategies, the Group intends to place emphasis on improving its cash flow, and continues efforts to reduce inventories, adopt efficient production methods, and make appropriate business decisions more strongly than ever before. By doing so, the Group is determined to transform itself into a competitive enterprise with a sense of speed. Going forward, the Group will strike a balance between "well-modulated attack" and "well-modulated defense" based on the basic policies of the 2013 Medium-Term Plan, which include the continuous pursuit of growth business fields and reinforcement of self-sustaining structures, and will make maximum effort toward enhancing corporate value.
